

Low Plain Tree Management Project

The New London Conservation Commission is working to improve the habitat for wildlife at Low Plain. Wildlife need both young and old tree growth for habitat. Some areas are in need of tree harvesting to create space for new growth. Young trees provide food and shelter for many wild animals, including some species whose numbers are in decline. Other areas will not have tree harvesting, leaving mature trees to provide habitat for different species of wildlife. Please visit the NL Conservation Commission web site for more information on this project:
